UCC To Name Director At Next Open Session

William K. Wolfe Of Ossining, New York Expected To Be Named At November 9 Meeting

The United Community Corp's selection of a new executive director will be a public affair.

A UCC spokesman said yesterday the antipoverty agency's board of trustees will hold a special open meeting Nov. 9 to decide whether to hire William K. Wolfe of Ossining, N.Y., as executive director.

The UCC's executive committee has decided that the special meeting should be open to the public, just as the regular ones are. The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. in Area Board I (Project Concern) 193 Central Ave.

Wolfe, 40, is executive director of the Urban League of Westchester County, N.Y. He has been nominated for the UCC post by a 15-member personnel committee. Now the full board must decide whether to hire him, and what salary to set.

The UCC's first director Cyril D. Tyson, was receiving $24,000 a year when he resigned Sept. 30. The federal government is setting a new limit of $15,000 on the amount it will pay to any antipoverty official, but local agencies can still seek sums from other sources to pay more than that. Wolfe is earning $17,000 at the Urban League.

Two other major items will be on the agenda Nov. 9. They are recommendations from the executive committee that the UCC board:

Ask its budget and finance committee to draw up a statement of the local funds it will need, for presentation to the City Council.

Reject a suggestion from the U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity that funds be taken from other programs to set up special services for an on-the-job training program.

The UCC has received only

$28,503 from the city in the last two years, and it has not requested additional funds recently. However, the local share of the cost of antipoverty projects will increase from 10 to 20 per cent next July 1 under a bill passed by Congress and now awaiting President Johnson's signature.

The local share of UCC Projects to date has been about $800,000, but most has been provided in services, facilities or equipment—not in cash. But if the needed local sum is doubted, the agency may have to seek a considerable amount of cash from the city.

The U.S. Labor Department last spring gave UCC a go-ahead on an on-the-job training project for 500 persons, but the Newark agency insists it needs $187,296 in special counseling testing and other services to make the project worthwhile. OEO says it doesn't have any money for the special services and has suggested that UCC dip into surplus funds from other projects.

The UCC executive committee has refused to go along with this. If no funds are available for the counseling, there is some question if or when the UCC would begin the OJT project.

Blackout Anniversary, Can It Happen Again?

Late in the afternoon of November 9, 1965, a gigantic power failure threw a big, black blanket over the northeast portion of the United States. The failure lasted from a few minutes in some areas to more than 12 hours in New York City. It encompassed 80,000 square miles and directly affected an estimated 30 million people.

New Jersey escaped that blackout, with the exception of its northern fringe, which is served by the Orange and Rockland Electric Company.

In the area served by Public Service Electric and Gas Company (it supplies electricity to 80 percent of the state's population), the lights burned brightly.

Why? That's a long, technical story. Good design, good planning, good equipment, good engineers — things are all involved.

A question that's more pertinent today is: Can the blackout happen again, and, perhaps this time, bring all of New Jersey sputtering to a standstill?

Public Service thinks it's safer to assume that it can happen here. And it has acted accordingly.

Two days after last year's blackout, Public Service dedicated the largest gas turbine generator of its type in the world at Sewaren, N. J. Powered by eight Pratt and Whitney jet engines — the same type that speed jet planes across the sky — this generator is capable of starting without outside electrical aid. The engines run on natural gas — the same gas that's used to light your kitchen stove. It can reach full power capacity within a few minutes. Though its primary purpose is to provide electricity during peak demand periods (when all those air-conditioners are going full blast on a summery summer's day), it can be used to start up other generating stations. Not long after it was in operation, it did just that. It cranked up another generator at Burlington Generating Station, 70 miles across the state. It was exactly the sort of equipment that was needed in the blackout area last year.

Since then, Public Service has placed orders for six additional gas turbines. This will give each of the generating stations in the Public Service system one of these self-starters — there already is one at Essex Generating Station. All will be operating by the latter part of 1967.

Small emergency generators are also being installed at switching stations throughout the system. These generators will also be self-starting and will provide electricity to keep switching station equipment operating.

Public Service has always trained its electric system dispatchers to make judgments and act quickly in emergencies, without consulting with supervisors. But as a result of the blackout, it has enlarged this training program to make certain its men will be even better equipped to operate the highly sophisticated system of the future. The new program is heavily weighed with emergency procedures.

The cost of service reliability is high. To date, Public Service has committed itself to spend $650,000 for work that would not have been done if the blackout had not occurred. An additional $24 million has been committed for work that normally would not have been done for at least one or two years in the future.

In May of this year it dedicated the big 330,000 kilowatt Yards Creek Pumped Storage Generating Station, which it shares with Jersey Central Power and Light Company near Blairstown, N. J. The Yards Creek project is the first phase of a proposed three-stage pumped storage power development. The entire project will have a total capacity of 1,630,000 kilowatts.

Earlier this month, Public Service announced that it would build a nuclear power station in Burlington Township and Burlington City, along the lower Delaware River. This will be the largest electric generating unit of any type in New Jersey and one of the largest in the world. It will have a capacity of approximately 1,000,000 kilowatts.

Another big generating unit with a capacity of 600,000 kilowatts is under construction in Jersey City. It will begin operating in 1968.

Public Service is also participating with other companies in the construction of the two-unit 1,800,000 kilowatt Keystone Generating Station and its twin project, Conemaugh Generating Station, both in western Pennsylvania.

Opportunities Industrialization Centers. Beginning in the basement of Zion Church, the program is designed to train Negroes to become skilled in a trade and become responsible citizens.

The program has expanded, according to Mrs. Staten, to the point that a grant for $335,000 has been received from the Office of Economic Opportunity to coordinate its nationwide program. Centers now operate in Seattle, Washington; Boston, Massachusetts; New Haven, Connecticut; Los Angeles, California; and Little Rock Arkansas. Dr. Sullivan now heads a program that spends more than 2.5 million dollars improving the Negro community.

Dr. Sullivan has been hailed by LIFE magazine, featured in the WALL STREET JOURNAL and is generally regarded as one of the "outstanding Negro leaders in America."

The public is invited to attend the banquet. Reservations may be secured at the Church Office.

Speaker For November 6

The Reverend Wyatt Tee Walker, a civil rights leader and a member of the New York State Human Rights Commission, will preach the 95th Anniversary Sermon of Bethany Baptist Church on Sunday, November 6 at 11:00 a.m.

During the year long celebration of Bethany's 95th Anniversary the Church has sought to evaluate its future Ministry, especially its opportunities for service to the poor. It has reaffirmed its intention to minister to all people, particularly those in need. Its mission and outreach program is being totally revamped, so as to reach and involve people who live in its shadow.

The Church has stressed that it belongs in the city and will minister to the city. It is mounting a campaign for $75,000 during 1967 to finance construction of new building facilities. During the last nineteen months

Rodino Cites U.N. Record

Rep. Peter W. Rodino (D-10th District) reminded campaign audiences this week that he has given the United Nations his full and complete support during his 18 years in Congress.

Noting the observance of United Nations Week, Rodino said the world organization "is more necessary today than ever before in history as a forum for civilized nations intent upon securing permanent peace, eliminating the evils of poverty and hunger, improving the standards of health and widening the opportunities for education."

Rodino said he was hopeful that the United Nations could play a useful role in present efforts to achieve a just peace in Vietnam and to ease the ominous tensions in the Middle East, where Israel has raised compelling complaints about Syrian border violations.

Rodino also pointed to his proposal to establish a permanent United Nations peace keeping force to strengthen the world organization's hand in maintaining peace among nations.

There will NOT be an early family service at 8:30 A.M. Holy Communion will be served at the 11:00 A.M. Service.

Benucci Announces Deadline

Christmas gifts to overseas military personnel should be mailed between now and November 10th, for timely delivery, Postmaster Joseph J. Benucci said this week. Airmailed gifts should be sent no later than December 10th.

These dates also apply to family members of military personnel and U.S. Citizens employed overseas who receive their mail through an APO-NPO or Fleet Post Office. The Postmaster cautioned against oversized Airmail packages, such packages are limited to a combined length and width of 60 inches.

Articles to be packed should be placed in sturdy cartons with sufficient cushioning to protect gifts from damage in handling. He warned against mailing contraband articles such as matches, lighter fluids and alcoholic beverages.

Harris Winds Up Congress Campaign

Winding up his campaign to become the first Negro Congressman from New Jersey, Freeholder Earl Harris, Republican candidate for Congress in the 10th Congressional District, made a whirlwind tour of housing projects, supermarkets and street corners last week.

At every stop he hammered home the point that organized labor, for the first time in history, has broken precedent by endorsing a Republican, Senator Clifford P. Case, because of his brilliant labor and civil rights record. Harris pointed out that it is also time for Negro voters to break their pattern of only voting on the Democratic line, and start voting for the man, instead of the party.

"New Jersey has never sent a Negro Congressman to Washington" Harris said, "but November 8th will change that pattern if you will vote for me on line B - along with my running mate, Senator Case. My record as Essex County Freeholder speaks for itself. I have been a labor union official, a leader in the struggle for equal rights, a co-ordinator for Dr. Martin Luther King's Selma Freedom March, and I am a qualified and experienced legislator. I ask for the support of all working people, particularly our people, because they are my only bosses."

Touching other areas of concern to the people of his district, Harris again promised to fight for an end to rising prices, more personal tax deductions, an expanded program of rebuilding our blighted cities, federally guaranteed mortgage loans for older homes in ghetto areas, portable pension plans for workers who lose or leave their jobs after many years of service with one company.

EMORY BROWN -TALENT SCOUT

His job is to find talented young men for New Jersey Bell. He travels all over the state—talking to civic groups, interviewing in high schools—to encourage young people to come to work for New Jersey Bell. □ He's looking for young men to start as telephone linemen. These are important jobs, and the men that fill them can move into more advanced work installing telephones or handling complex equipment in a telephone office. And, the opportunity is really unlimited. □ Emory also gives talks to encourage young people to stay in school. A good education is necessary for good jobs—like the ones Emory fills.

EDITORIAL

Over the past six weeks all candidates for office have more or less discussed the issues of their campaign. Now, that Election Day is upon us, the people will make the choice.

To assure that their choice is reported accurately, we feel now is the time to remind all that there are New Jersey laws designed to protect the voter and the voting results.

Challengers from both parties have the duty as well as the right to make certain that all voting machine counters register zero when the polls open. They have the right to check the figures when the machine is opened at the close of the voting day. Also, they have the absolute duty to make certain that these correct figures are transposed to the official election sheet reports.

In addition to these most important points, the other general rules for fair voting apply, covering the prohibiting of loitering in polling places, the tampering with voting machines, etc.

New Jersey voting laws have teeth in them. Those who would circumvent the free expression of the people's choice might well remember this.

In general, any person found guilty of violating the law is liable to a $500 fine or imprisonment for one year, or both.

Democracy demands great vigilance for its people and certainly one of the most important demands is that elections be conducted fairly and that the return report truly and accurately the people's decision.

Museum Program

The Newark Museum's annual fall-winter series of Sunday Afternoon Concerts will begin on Sunday, November 6 at 2:00 p.m., with a performance by the Roxbury Trio in the Museum Court.

The Trio will play the Brahms C-minor Trio #4, op. 101, and the Shostakovich Trio, op. 67.

Members of the Roxbury Trio are Sophie Goldblatt, piano, Mary Wortreich, cello and Norman Goldblatt, violin. All three talented musicians are New Jersey residents. Individually, they have concertized extensively throughout the country and are especially well known to audiences in New Jersey and the Philadelphia and New York metropolitan areas. Mr. and Mrs. Goldblatt, in addition to solo appearances, have made frequent concert tours as a sonata team. Since the debut of the Trio in 1964, the group has received high critical acclaim for the quality of its ensemble playing.

The 1966-67 concerts are being presented at the Museum under the sponsorship of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Dreyfuss and the Franklin Conklin Jr., Museum Concert Fund. Dr. Alfred Mann is musical director of the series, which will continue on the first Sundays in January, February and March.

The Newark Museum Planetarium announces that its new show for November-December presentation will be an illustrated discussion of "Other Milky Ways." Public performances are given every Saturday, Sunday (except November 6) and holiday at 2:30 and 3:30 p.m. Admission to the Planetarium is free but children under 7 may not attend.

"Other Milky Ways" will start with a description of our galaxy, the Milky Way, before investigating the hundreds of billions of galaxies visible to today's large telescopes. Galaxies and groups of galaxies are the largest units in the Universe. Our Milky Way, containing two hundred billion (200,000,000,000) stars is more than 100,000 light years across, but others are much larger.

The discussion will attempt to answer some of the puzzling questions about galaxies: What are their similarities and differences? How did they come into existence? What is their life-span? The new optical telescopes and radio telescopes have uncovered vast amounts of information about galactic size, shape and structure, which helps to provide the answers.

Library

Two travel films will be shown on the Mid-day Movie program of the Newark Public Library on Thursday, November 10. "One Road" is an auto tour through Europe and the Middle East, and "Trinidad and Tobago" shows these Caribbean Islands against a sound track of native music. The program will be given at 12:30 p.m. at the Main Library, 5 Washington Street. Admission is free.

Nina Simone

Nina Simone Honored As Woman of the Year

Nina Simone was honored as Woman of the Year at the Jazz At Home Club Banquet Award in Philadelphia, Pa. Accepting the Jazz Cultural Award before a capacity audience at the Sheraton Hotel, Miss Simone said she was thrilled and honored with being presented such a high award. She further stated that she was sorry such an award had never been made to the late Billie Holiday or Dinah Washington, and that upon accepting this award she offers her gratitude to those who made it possible, and especially to Billie and Dinah who inspired her towards greater heights.

In making this award Del Shields W.L.I.B. New York said Miss Simone has always presented a style of music that helped the jazz world relations, that thru her singing and playing she reached the masses of all races. Mr. Shields further stated that Miss Simone's talents as a singer, composer and musician is deeply engraved in the world of Cultural Jazz, and shall be etched in the hearts of jazz lovers for eternity.

Miss Simone is the first woman to receive the Jazz Cultural Award, and by doing so she is enshrined along with great Jazz Artist such as Duke Ellington, Jimmy Smith and Clark Terry.

Chet Carmichale President of the Jazz At Home Club said "On stage she is regarded as an 'experience' as well as an act and press reviews invariably make particular note of her 'spell-binding' effect on audience."

Miss Simone's fans came from Florida, Detroit Michigan, Baltimore and New York and other states to honor her at the Awards banquet.

Billy Taylor the great Jazz Musician was presented with a citation for his outstanding contribution to jazz, as was Jazz Announcer Del Shields, for his integrity in promoting Cultural Jazz.

Miss Simone also gave her fashion minded members of the dinner a pleasing surprise when she appeared wearing a combination mini-skirt evening gown. The garment was purple and gold with a sheer gold veil overlay, a matching hat with gold shoes and gold stockings.

At the conclusion of the Awards the guest gave Nina a standing ovation and demanded that she play "Four Women" for them, which she did.

Young Leaves For Iron Curtain Tour

A group of chief executives from 26 of the nation's giant corporations left New York last week on a two-week tour of Iron Curtain countries. The group, traveling under the sponsorship of Time Inc., includes Whitney M. Young Jr., executive director of the National Urban League the only Negro making the trip.

The tour will take the group to Hungary, Rumania, Czechoslovakia, Poland and Yugoslavia.

Bernard M. Auer, publisher of Time, described the tour as an "attempt to provide a group of leading American businessmen and a number of editorial as well as publishing executives in America with a direct experience in certain major foreign areas."

The purpose of the trip, Auer added, "is journalistic inquiry rather than commercial or economic intelligence. The members of the party are going as responsible, concerned American citizens rather than as representatives of their business enterprises."

Other businessmen in the group are such prominent figures as Henry Ford II, chairman of the board of Ford Motor Co.; John Leland, president and chairman of the board of North American Aviation, Inc.; Joseph Frederick Cullman III, president and chief executive officer of Philip Morris Inc.; Russell DeYoung, chairman of the board of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company; George Keith Funston president of the New York Stock Exchange; John Langeloth Loeb senior partner of Carl M. Loeb Rhoades and Co., and George A. Murphy, chairman of the board of Irving Trust Company.

WHEREAS: All Americans join in the observance of Veterans Day, commemorating this notable occasion as a valorous tribute to the veterans, of all wars of America, who so patriotically and devotedly served and died while others served and lived; and

WHEREAS: This observance may also be regarded as a fitting commemoration of the efforts and spirit of self-sacrifice of our present and future fighting men and women, while we fervently hope and pray for permanent Peace on Earth.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, HUGH J. ADDONIZIO, MAYOR OF THE CITY OF NEWARK, NEW JERSEY, do hereby proclaim

and hereby request that our Flag be displayed from all public and private buildings and that our citizens give full attention to the appropriate exercises which have been planned, wreath-laying ceremonies at Military Park on Sunday November 6th, followed by Memorial Services, and the ceremonies at City Hall at 10:00 A.M., Friday, November 11, and the parade at 11:00 A.M. I further hope that in all houses of worship, at some time during the week, a reverend thought be given to those men and women who made the supreme sacrifice, so that our democratic heritage and ideals of freedom may be perpetuated, and that under God's guidance, future wars shall be banished from the earth and permanent Peace come to all mankind.

Louvre Represented In Bamberger's Art Show

When Bamberger's unveils its spectacular five million dollar collection of original art to the state of New Jersey on November 7th the Louvre Museum will present a totally new concept in the re-creation of drawings and watercolors.

As an adjunct to the priceless original works in Bamberger's "Gallery of the Masters", the Louvre Museum has re-created a collection of the most famous drawings of the French School as well as four of the most important pieces of sculpture in the Louvre or, indeed, the world.

Monsieur Jacomet of the Louvre Museum, working in association with the Directors of the Museums of France, has invented an incredibly accurate new process for the re-creation of drawings and watercolors never before seen in the United States. Concentrating on re-creating the works of the French Masters, the Bamberger's collection, from the Louvre will show works of Watteau, Boucher, Fragonard, David, Ingres, Corot, Delacroix, Damier, Millet and Degas. In each case the drawings represent a tool in the hand of the given artist so he works toward a now world-renowned painting. In their spontaneity and basic approach the drawings reveal not only the character and working methods of the artist from the Middle Ages to the 20th Century but also provide remarkable insight into the intent of the ultimate work. The Louvre project enables viewers to see and admire works of art which are otherwise prohibited from travel because of their fragility and priceless value.

The Louvre Workshop, operating on a commission from Bamberger's has also made a remarkable contribution to Bamberger's "Gallery of the Masters". Working from the mold of the original work, the Louvre Workshop has re-created the Louvre's famous statues of Venus de Milo, Winged Victory, King Solomon and the Queen of Sheba. Each work is in actual size and exact in every detail in that the recreation has been struck from the original mold. The Venus is 6' 8" tall and is the most famous of the existing Greek statues of Aphrodite. Completed in the Second Century B. C. it was found in 1820 on the Island of Melos in the Aegean Sea. The French Ambassador to Constantinople removed the statue to France where King Louis XVIII made the eventual presentation to the Louvre.

Winged Victory, standing 8' tall, also known as Nike and Victory of Samothrace, was originally erected in 306 B.C. on the highest point of the Island of Samothrace to commemorate a naval victory over the Syrians. Discovered in pieces in 1856 by a French Archeologist, it was reassembled and sent to the Louvre.

The statues of King Solomon and the Queen of Sheba both stand 8' 4" tall and found their first home in France against a portal of the Church of Notre Dame de Corbeil, just outside Paris. Later they were removed to the Abbey of St. Denis, the burial place of the Kings of France, and ultimately to their final home.

Both collections from the Louvre will remain with Bamberger's "Gallery of the Masters" as the store's five million dollar art collection is shown from November 7th through December 24th.

Newarker Leads Group For Negro History Law

The Negro Historical Awareness Day Committee of Newark is circulating petitions to get a state law to require teaching of Negro history in New Jersey high schools.

James Hooper of 148 Goldsmith Ave., founder and chairman of the committee, said more than 1,000 signatures have been collected already. A delegation will take the petitions to the State House in Trenton Nov. 21, he said.

The petitions urge the Senate to pass A-509, a bill to require high school history courses to include material "dealing with the history of the Negro in America." The bill passed the Assembly last May 9, and is still before the Senate education committee.

Hooper, a supervisor at a meat packing plant, said his group hopes to gather at least 5,000 signatures. The trip to Trenton, he said, is being arranged with the help of Assemblyman Ronald Owens, D-Essex, a sponsor of A509. The drive has been endorsed, he said, by Mayor Hugh J. Addonizio.

"I feel that many of the problems between races today stem from the mere fact that the truth about Negroes has been withheld from our children, black and white," said Hooper.

He added: "I believe that this bill will be a great step forward toward educating our children and generations to come about the history of all people. It will also give dignity to Negro children."

Hooper's committee arranged a special Negro heritage exhibit and program last Feb. 10 at the Continental Ballroom. It is planning an expanded event next Feb. 10 at Symphony Hall, he said.

Four New Training Programs To Begin

A concerted effort to equip more than 200 unemployed and under-employed Newark wage earners with occupational skills in demand by area businesses and industries will be started this month, it was announced today by Edward J. Hall, director of the State Division of Employment Security.

Financed under the Federal Area Redevelopment Act, four training programs will be given at Newark's Montgomery Street School under the auspices of the Newark Board of Education and the State Division of Vocational Education.

The federal appropriation allows for the training of 218 persons. All must be residents of Newark.

Two of the courses will start on Monday, November 7. This will include 13 weeks of training for shipping and receiving clerks and a 26-week course for automobile body repairmen.

The class for shipping and receiving clerks will be limited to 16 trainees but will be followed by four additional sessions, with each subsequent course starting at the conclusion of the previous one.

The automobile body repairmen's course will be limited to 15 students and will be followed by three similar programs.

The two other training opportunities will get underway the following Monday, November 14. One will be a 36-week course for electrician's helpers and the other a 27-week course for special diet workers, needed to provide proper dietary care for hospital patients.

The course for electrician's helpers will have 18 trainees and will be followed by a similar course. The one for special diet workers will have 14 students and will be the first of three such courses.

In addition to the occupational training, instruction in basic educational fundamentals will be provided, if necessary. Classes for all courses will be held five days a week, from 3:30 to 10 p.m.

The training program was established after a survey indicated a current and future need for workers with these skills.

Trainees are being interviewed and selected by the Newark Youth Opportunity Center of the State Employment Service, 1004 Broad Street, although further information about the courses may be obtained at any state employment office. All offices will help graduates obtain permanent jobs.

FRONTIERS AT PHILLY: When Frontiers International, Inc., the only predominantly Negro service organization, held workshop sessions for District I & II at Franklin Motor Inn recently, the occasion warranted the presence of members of five states and the District of Columbia. Holiday Dress Collection For Sweet Little Girls

The Nannette Holiday collection for little girls is just as fancy, enchanting and pretty as Christmas tree ornaments. The overall look is one of colorful fluffiness. There are see-through sheers over tiny floral prints. There are sheers over plain fabrics. Ribbons, embroideries

A lino stripe holiday dress in Christmas red with a high yoke. The white organdy collar is accented with a streamer bow. The organdy cuffs have an adorable holly motif. The dress has its own batiste underskirt. By Nannette. Available at Bambergers.

There are "BabySweet" dresses with smocked yokes and sleeves. Bodices are often shirred. There are many dimity apron and pinafore dresses. There are long sleeved dresses that feature important cuffs teamed with matching yokes and collars.

As a matter of fact — everything goes as long as it points in the right fashion direction. Nannette believes in the development of fashion taste in the very young. Start them in the right direction and as they grow older there will never be any question of their good taste. In line with good taste there is the ever present nautical look crisply done with big collar and bow. There is the pleated mini-skirt topped with a slim bodice on a little one. Or Buster Brown dresses boasting big chin bows. There are wonderful white knits trimmed delicately with mylar banding. Little ones really make big fashion news.

Colors are many. There is Christmas red and Christmas green. There's navy and brown. There are rich jewel tones of emerald, ruby, amethyst, sapphire and turquoise. There are bright colors, combinations of neon green and orange, or hot pink and cherry fizz. There's new grass green and shy wood violet. There are light colors of pink, blue, maize and mint. White is used alone or with colors.

Fabrics are varied and have many textures. Precures abound in blends of dacron and cotton, in fortrel and cotton and fortrel and avril. No matter which precure it is — it will never, never need ironing. There is rayon linen, sheet cotton voile; there is broadcloth and challis; there are rich velveteens.

Patterns are varied. One of the most popular for the Holiday Season is dotted Swiss, closely followed by tiny rosebud and other small prints. But then there are big dots and little dots, pin stripes and wide stripes; there are mintchecks and big checks—all of them designed into dresses with the right look for the little girl.

But whether the dresses for Holiday by Nannette are from the regular or the Boutique collection, mother's and grandmother's and proud aunts and uncles can rest assured that the fashions are in exquisite taste — and no matter how delicate the dresses look they are made for little girls to live in — not just to look pretty in. They're made to wear and wear. After all, Nannette has specialized in toddler dresses for over forty years.

H-A Sports Notes

"TWISTIN' ROUND THE SPORTS BEAT: As predicted in this column many weeks ago the Brooklyn Dodger gridders have written their financial figures in red ink and have decided to shift their remaining games at the Randalls Island elsewhere. Personally we thought the Brooklyn Dodgers played good football. However, the poor facilities at Randalls Island and the over exposure of the N.Y. Giants and the N.Y. Jets made it impossible for Jackie Robinson's ball club to be a success at forlorn Randalls Island... Let's hope that next season the Brooklyn Dodgers will be able to use the Shea Stadium for their home games... Doug Jones poor performance against Cassius Clay in their exhibition bout last week eliminated him from any consideration as a heavy-weight contender. Emil Griffith, the worlds' middleweight champion is concentrating on perfecting a better defense for his forthcoming bout with cagey Joey Archer. Griffith feels that Archer has developed a stronger offense than he had that hot day in July when Griffith earned a razor edge decision.

Bill Russell, the new coach of the Boston Celtics insists that the champion Celtics under his coaching, will continue to use the same eight plays they always utilized. "Besides", I don't know others and our options are better than our plays anyway," says Russell. The great play of Bailey Howell, Sam Jones and Johnny Havlicek blended with Bill Russell's terrific defensive play make the Celtics a tough team to defeat. The New York Knicks seem to be an improved ball club with Howard Komives, Dick Van Arsdale, Willis Reed and Dave Stallworth doing great work. It's expected that Cazzie Russell when he learns the ropes will be of great assistance to the Knicks. The New York Rangers as yet have not jellied into a cohesive unit... Time is awastin' and unless they can play 500 their chances of gaining a Stanley Cup berth may slip away before they know it.

FOOTBALL SELECTIONS: IN THE NATIONAL FOOTBALL LEAGUE: St. Louis will trim New York, Cleveland to take Pittsburgh, Dallas will defeat Philadelphia, Chicago to nip Detroit, Los Angeles will edge San Francisco, Green Bay to outplay Minnesota, Baltimore will defeat Washington. IN THE AMERICAN FOOTBALL LEAGUE: Oakland to upset Houston, San Diego to edge Kansas City, Boston over Denver, Buffalo will trounce Miami. COLLEGE PICKS: Army to ride over George Washington, Boston University to take Connecticut, Dartmouth to trounce Columbia, Syracuse will edge Penn State, Yale to outscore Pennsylvania, Harvard to whip Princeton, Duke to sink Navy, Notre Dame to wallop Pittsburgh, Rutgers will pummel Lafayette, Michigan State will whip Iowa, Michigan to edge Illinois, Ohio State over Indiana, Missouri will defeat Colorado, Alabama to take Louisiana State, Tennessee to steamroll Chattanooga, West Virginia over Citadel, Arkansas will eat Rice, Texas over Baylor, UCLA to thump Washington, Southern California will defeat California, Utah over Arizona State, Florida State to bump South Carolina.

IMPORTANCE OF
CONDITIONING YOUR HAIR

First, Hair "Conditioners" as the words imply are substances which you can use to improve the appearance and feel of your hair. The use of hair conditioner is most important on hair which has suffered damage from some external source such as the sun, hot comb, chemicals or the abuse of neglect. Hair conditioners are also used on normal hair to beautify, preserve its natural beauty as well as to prevent dryness, brittle cracking conditions. The SHIM Hair Formula contains substances derived from ingredients that closely resemble the structure of our hair. SHIM Formulas contain ingredients which are intended to penetrate your hair. A certain amount of swelling takes place within your hair giving it new softer, more elastic body. Parts of your hair which are more porous absorb your SHIM far easier than grease or grease.
